O God -- our hearts are gladdened in your house -- let all the beauty we have known -- show forth your glory -- let all the truth our minds have found -- speak out your praise -- let all the goodness our souls have met -- bless your holy name.

Let this house -- fashioned out of the heights and depths of man's own being -- consecrate us with something too often lost in the world's way of haste and pride -- and shelter our eternal souls -- in your eternal love. Through Jesus Christ our Lord, who taught us to pray:

"Our Father, Who art in heaven..."

SYNOPSIS OF THE ARMENIAN SERMON. ( James 5: 1-6)

Our Scripture condemns "the rich," not because of their wealth, but because of their attitude toward it. They have made it unfairly, and they have used it unwisely. Most of our problems with money involve two basic mistakes:

1. First. We forget what it can do to us. The rottenness of wealth is not always in the treasure itself. More often it is in the heart of the one who holds it. Money, intended to be a servant, can very easily become a tyrant to those whom James addressed. The desire to possess had taken possession of them, and they were no longer in charge of their own lives.

2. The other mistake that is often made is forgetting what we should do with money. Most people assume that the first purpose of money is to pay the bills, and after that the main objective is accumulation. If all we do with our money is feed, cloth and shelter ourselves and save the rest, we are going to lose it all. We are going to die and leave every penny behind. As someone has said, "All you can hold in your cold, dead hand is what you have given away ." To accept that indisputable reality and act accordingly is the only practical approach to money.
